

Give Your Furnace Some Love and Get Money Back

A furnace is a significant investment, so you want it to last as long as possible. Regular maintenance is the best way to get the most out of your furnace. Plus, eligible Texas Gas Service customers can put money back in their wallets with our furnace rebates.

How Can a Furnace Tune-Up Help You?

Did you know that a neglected furnace runs less efficiently requiring more energy to heat your home?

By hiring a licensed contractor to perform a furnace tune-up annually, you can make sure your heating system will be ready when cold days arrive. A tune-up can help identify issues early and pinpoint potential problems that could result in more costly repairs in the future. During a furnace tune-up, a contractor will check for leaks, seal them and adjust the air temperature controls to maximize efficiency.

“There are a lot of parts to a natural gas furnace – motors, belts, blowers, vents and more that need regular maintenance to ensure proper function and prevent unnecessary wear and tear,” said Tony Estrada, energy efficiency technical specialist for Texas Gas Service.

Homeowners should also remember to change the air filter regularly.

“You’ll breathe cleaner air, save energy and save money,” said Estrada. “Failure to follow these preventative measures could cause excess wear on your system and impact its life span.”

Additionally, most manufacturers require proof of regular maintenance to honor their warranty.
